Brian is a co-founder of IQ Proteomics with more than 15 years of proteomics research and associated applications experience. Brian co-founded IQP during his time as a postdoctoral researcher in the laboratory of Steven Gygi at Harvard Medical School. IQP was established to commercialize novel proteomics workflows and reagents, and to leverage their proteomics expertise to provide proteome characterization to the pharma and bio-tech industry. At IQP, Brian is the CEO and oversees business development, finance, and commercial and R&D strategy.
